October 2022 News and Upcoming Events

Welcome to Fall! Fall is such a wonderful time of year here in northern New Mexico. While the nights are cooler and longer the days are still warm and beautiful. This is the time of balloon fiesta and aspen leaves turning golden as well as the last fruits of the season - apples and pears - ripening and becoming sweet. The farmers' market still has so much beautiful, delicious and nutritious abundance!

Food policy - national & local

There was a lot of focus on food and nutrition this week at the White House Conference on Hunger, Nutrition, and Health. As eaters, we can all play a role in this endeavor. The administration announced a national strategy that identifies steps to catalyze the public and private sectors to work to end hunger and reduce diet-related disease. Closer to home, the NM Food & Ag Policy Council is holding its next statewide meeting, Tuesday, October 11th, 1:30 - 3:00 pm. You can RSVP here. This is a great way to learn about State legislative updates and the agenda for the 2023 legislative session.

Terra Madre 2022

Slow Food International's signature event, held once every 2 years, just concluded in Turin Italy. The event included 3,000 delegates from 130 countries. The message of Terra Madre 2022 was Regeneration, with an invitation to visitors from all over the globe to think about food as key to regenerating our planet and as a bridge to peace. We're planning an interview on our radio show Slow Food Santa Fe Out Loud with a local attendee in December.
